Thanksgiving.

We published last week, the Proclama the day will be generally observed by our backsliding will be fatal. people-the business men of this place

The ministers and congregations of the writ is writ. Presbyterian and Methodist Episcopal Churches of Pomeroy, have agreed to unite on that occasion for the purpose of religious worship. The services will be held in the Methodist E. Church, commencing at 10 o'clock A. M. Other Churches and congregations will also hold religious services during the day.

This is all right and proper. It is befitting and seemly, with thankful hearts, to render our acknowledgments to "Our Father Who is in the Heavens," for all his manifold blessings and benefits. True, our worship is not needed by the Lord nor does He require it at our hands for His own sake. His Infinite Love is not changed by our performance or neglect of this, or any other service. He causeth His Sun to shine equally on the evil and the good, and sendeth His rain upon the just and the unjust alike. His tender mercies are over all His works, and even to the obdurate and unthankful His bounteous hand is Why, then, concern ourselves, if we cannot, by so doing, alter the feelings of the unchangable and all wise Being toward us? For our own sakes, doubtless.

The Sun, which symbolizes in the nat ural world, the Divine Being in the spiritual, sends abroad, in never-ceasing flow, its streams of vivifying heat and light upon all things alike. The same influences which scent the rose and paint the lilly. passing through the deadly night-shade, are changed to rankest poison. The difference is in the nature and quality of the recipient subject, and not in the Sun. The same law, doubtless, pervades all spirmen, but that life, in its ultimate effects, will be as various as the qualities of the mediums through which it flows.

It is an universal law pervading all lifeall growth-whether vegetable, animal or spiritual, that the recipient subject, taking in its forms and vessels, the substances which nourish and sustain it, by the subtile chemistry of its vital laboratory, modifies, changes, and assimilates those substances to a oneness with itself, and out of these, produces fruit in exact correspondence with the nature of the stock which number of tree negroes &c. bears it.

If the laws of natural growth and health had never been perverted, the currents of sisters and herself: natural life would flow smoothly and physical pain would be unknown; but having perverted all these laws, and obstructed all these currents, our beautiful world has beis the groans extorted by hodily suffering. And so, too, if man had never departed Slavery are incompatible with each other, from the laws of spiritual life, if his soul was tuned to harmony with the Divine in their present relations, side by side, order, the influent Love and Wisdom of his Maker, would ultimate themselves in a life of beneficent use to his fellows, diffusing happiness as naturally as the pink emits its perfume, and for the reason, because it is its nature to do so. But man has departed from the laws of spiritual, as he has from those of his natural life, and spiritual disease is the consequence.

True happiness, in this or any other world, When those laws are violated disease follows, and in the footsteps of disease treads accomplishing them. its necessary attendant, unhappiness. Yet this is Democracy! This demoralizing and brutalizing effect of one such exhibition upon society, will do more to dissolve the ties of social order and let loose the demon of anarchy, than a score

Here were men, charged with the crime of murder to be sure, but protesting their innocence and safely kept from injuring society if even disposed to do so. If one set of men may take them untried and uncondemned, and with a ferocity of which savages would be ashamed, torture then to death in open daylight, what is to restrain their friends from avenging their death, and others theirs to infinity. It is clear that the existence of society in such a state of demoniacal passion, is wholly impossible. These scenes are becoming fearfully frequent, and if not soon suppressed will be past suppression.

Can it be True? It is known to our readers, that at the late elections in New York, Pennsylvania. New Jersey, Indiana, &c., the Republians, relying upon the integrity and good faith of several men who had formerly burley slave-driver must be superior to a been Democrats, elected them to Congress. Acting on this liberal policy, they elected some ten or twelve of these Democrats. against the united opposition of the Administration and the Democratic party.

We are now told by the Administration papers, that we have been deceived by these men-that they will now support the Administration in all its mensures, and that through their aid the Democratic party, although defeated by the people as they-the people-supposed, will, through these men be able to control the next Congress! Can this be true? We confess we don't believe it, yet the thing is possible. We know that the leaders of Lecomptonism will do anything for office. We give, in another article, a brief acount of several men being taken from a ail in Kentucky, by a mob and hung. Since that article was written, we learn from late papers, the particulars of another iail scene. William Haley was confined in the jail in Rockeastle, in that State, and securely fastened to the wall with iron chains and coffles. While in this condition, and wholly unable to evade the at tack, a Mr. Moore came to the open window, and pointing his gun through the grating, deliberately shot him. The same general rules of construction will also a ply to private residences. The largest and best ventilated rooms should be for dormitories. We occupy them for a greater proportion of the time than any other room in our houses. Rooms above stairs in the second or third story are preferable, they are freeer from dampness than those on the ground floor. It is doubtless more wholesome to sleep without fire in your room, unless you have an open fireplace-a chimney is a good ventilator-a tight stove an abiding nuisance, and the man who constructs his residence for flues, nstead of grates, is either unacquainted with the laws of health and comfort, or he is too penúrious to pay the additional

The warming of Churches is (at least in his country) a comparatively recent custom. Our mothers and grandmothers of New England, a half century ago, carried their foot-stoves into unwarmed churches -dressed themselves warmly, and seldom suffered from cold. When it was proposed to warm their churches, the project met with strenuous opposition. If churches and public buildings cannot be warmed with open "fireplaces," then those on posing "old fogies" were right. There cannot be a doubt in the mind of any reflecting man, but that the prevailing effemimey, and fearful increase of consumption and other pulmonary diseases in all parts of the country, are referable to sudden transitions of temperature, from overheated apartments into the cold air. If therefore, stoves and furnaces for heating rooms are at all necessary, they are at least but necessary evils.
